Brian Ruttenbur, Managing Director, Imperial Capital Talks About 2021-2022 Security Trends

In the rapidly changing security landscape, Imperial Capital identifies key trends and insights that will shape the security industry in the upcoming years. Here are some highlights from their recent research:

1. Supply Chain Challenges: The recent pandemic has highlighted the vulnerabilities in global supply chains. The shortage of skilled labor, particularly in the logistics sector, has added to the challenges. Companies are looking to move from just-in-time inventory systems to more resilient models.

2. Increased Security and Safety: The pandemic has accelerated the focus on security and safety in all areas of life. There is an increase in demand for physical security solutions, such as access control and video monitoring.

3. Smart Home Devices: Demand for smart home devices remains high, driven by consumer interest in security and convenience. The traditional alarm monitoring market is seeing a surge in IoT and home automation.

4. Security Technologies: Companies like Allied Universal, Blackstone, and Motorola have made significant acquisitions in the security technology sector, expanding their offerings.

5. Sustainability and Environmental Responsibility: There is growing emphasis on sustainability in security solutions, with a focus on reducing carbon emissions and adopting eco-friendly practices.

6. Regulatory and Compliance: New regulations and compliance standards are being introduced, requiring companies to implement robust security measures to remain compliant.

Imperial Capital's research provides valuable insights for companies looking to navigate the rapid changes in the security industry.
